Well sure, there are super advanced web analytic tools like Google Analytics to track nearly everything about your website visitors and e-commerce clients. But does our visitor counter service compete with such a advanced and complicated tool? The answer is: No not at all! Our web counters serve a very different purpose! With our free hit counter service you can see how much people visited your site very quickly and easily every time you visit your website. You don't have to login in a analytics account using your email and a password and sort through hundreds of pages of analytic data. All it takes is a visit on your website and you are updated! Very often it's not even possible to install the Google analytics javascript code because you are simply not allowed to! This is the case everytime you use a third party web 2.0 property like Blogger, Tumblr, Wordpress.com, Wix etc... All those services do not allow to install a visitor tracking system other than a simple html hit counter service like ours! Another reason to use a visitor counter service like ReliableCounter.com is to show your visitors how much people already visited the website before. Analytic services let you analyse your web traffic deeply, but a huge visitor counter, but a huge visitor counter, so your visitors how much people before already trusted and liked your website! This is a major factor to use a visitor counter service like ours and one of the reasons why we should use it about our hit counter service is extremely easy, and it's no registration, no sign up process required to use them. Simply be online want to know how many people visited your website, you have to be online, organized, and you have to use the web counter service. You can see how many people visited your website by clicking on the radio button next to the sample image. You'll be taken to a page where you can connect between couple of different options - what number you'd like your hit counter to start on, and whether you want to count all page views or just unique IP hits. Tell us your website, we'll send you the page or blog you want to use the webstats on, click 'Get My Code', and voila! The relevant snippet of HTML is all ready for you to cut and paste straight in to wherever you want it to display. Here at ReliableCounter.com, we've been supplying our 64,000+ users with accurate, reliable visitor counter services since 2007. We've done so well with this that recently we've branched out and also offer a QR code generator. We've all seen them around: QR barcodes are fast becoming invaluable for engaging a user with your website when they've stumbled across you in another media. They're useful on business cards, adverts, leaflets, shop windows... anywhere someone might see it while holding their phone. Seems to us, though, that they're just as powerful a tool when used the other way around. They don't just connect users with a website they've encountered while out and about - they can also help your visitors quickly and easily integrate your services with their daily lives. Using a QR code displayed on your website someone can access a URL. Instantly on their mobile browser, save your contact information to their address book, check out your location on Google Maps (and generate directions for how to get to you, too), send a predefined email or SMS - such as to a subscription service - automatically, call your telephone number, bookmark your website, visit the iTunes store or Android market page for your product, or connect with a predefined WLAN network. In order for us to understand why visitor counters are still so useful today, we have to first understand what it is. A web counter is a software application that shows the number of visitors/hits to a specific website page. Once a web counter is installed, it is increased by one every time the website page is accessed by a new visitor. A web counter is also known as a hit counter or simply a counter. The number shown by the web counter is normally shown as numerals, but it is possible for it to display as a text or image. Different fonts or styles can be used to display the detail of the web counter. A web counter works in the background and doesn't interrupt visitor's experience. Web counters can be set up by either incorporating it directly or by using a free or paid one. They can be programmable with the use of any scripting language, for example, PHP or C. A web counter adds up by counting the unique visits from different IP addresses. That is, if the same visitor reloads the page, the web counter does not increment, as it knows it's the same visitor. Do you want to learn more about the game and its origins? Then, you are in luck because this post looks at the history of Blackjack and online casinos. Now, even though blackjack is considered to be one of the most popular casino games of the century, its origins are subject to debate. Origins of Blackjack The first ever written account of the game with similar rules may be easily traced all the way back to Spain in the 17th century. It is during that period that Miguel de Cervantes had written a series of novellas referred to as Novelas Ejemplares. In one of his stories, Miguel had written about two characters that had played a game known as Ventuna which means 21 in Spanish. It might not have had the rules of blackjack that people know of today, but there were many similarities. This account had been written by Miguel somewhere between 1601 and 1602, which shows that people used to play the game even before that. French There are some historians which believe that the blackjack of today had been first played at the French courts during the 17th century. Vincent 21 is what is called and it had been played in France and Italy. There were two different versions of the game played in France. Another version that which suggests that blackjack was played early in the Americas. The Romans used to play a game where there were wooden blocks that had different numerical values and they enjoyed gambling. Beginning of Modern Blackjack It is due to the theories that it is quite unclear of who actually invented blackjack. Ever since Nevada legalized gambling in the year of 1931, gambling has only continued to become more popular. During that time, black jack was still known as 21. A special rule had later been introduced by some of the casinos in order to attract more players. The rule was regarding a hand with either of the blackjacks (jack of clubs or jack of spades) in which the ace of spades would require odds of 10 to 1 in order to win. This is where the name blackjack gained ground. Although, the rule did not stick around, however the new game did. Emergence of Online Casinos Ever since the dawn of 21st century,Online casino has become the mode of choice when it comes to gambling and playing games. There are plenty of websites that offer players with the opportunity to win big. If you are new to the game, then it is advised that you watch some tutorials to get an idea of how to play blackjack. Do you want to learn more about the game and its origins? Then, you are in luck because this post looks at the history of Blackjack and online casinos. Now, even though blackjack is considered to be one of the most popular casino games of the century, its origins are subject to debate. Origins of Blackjack The first ever written account of the game with similar rules may be easily traced all the way back to Spain in the 17th century. It is during that period that Miguel de Cervantes had written a series of novellas referred to as Novelas Ejemplares. In one of his stories, Miguel had written about two characters that had played a game known as Ventuna which means 21 in Spanish. It might not have had the rules of blackjack that people know of today, but there were many similarities. This account had been written by Miguel somewhere between 1601 and 1602, which shows that people used to play the game even before that. French There are some historians which believe that the blackjack of today had been first played at the French courts during the 17th century. Vincent 21 is what is called and it had been played in France and Italy. There were two different versions of the game played in France. Another version that which suggests that blackjack was played early in the Americas. The Romans used to play a game where there were wooden blocks that had different numerical values and they enjoyed gambling. Beginning of Modern Blackjack It is due to the theories that it is quite unclear of who actually invented blackjack. Ever since Nevada legalized gambling in the year of 1931, gambling has only continued to become more popular. During that time, black jack was still known as 21. A special rule had later been introduced by some of the casinos in order to attract more players. The rule was regarding a hand with either of the blackjacks (jack of clubs or jack of spades) in which the ace of spades would require odds of 10 to 1 in order to win. This is where the name blackjack gained ground. Although, the rule did not stick around, however the new game did. Emergence of Online Casinos Ever since the dawn of 21st century,Online casino has become the mode of choice when it comes to gambling and playing games. There are plenty of websites that offer players with the opportunity to win big. If you are new to the game, then it is advised that you watch some tutorials to get an idea of how to play blackjack.
