What Translate.com does? Translate.com is a leader in the market for professional human translations, software localization, and advanced language services since 2011, with the headquarters in Newark, USA. Trusted by the leading enterprises and companies worldwide, our company helps clients succeed in international markets with quality tools and talented people. We disrupt the old translation models with our online-powered high-quality translation solutions and a native-speaking expert translator team that delivers on-demand and accurate language translation services in over 90 languages. Can you handle translations of specialized professional content? Yes. We translate large amounts of content in many fields, extending from general business texts to those requiring the expert's knowledge or industry expertise. What types of files do you support? We support commonly used text formats (DOC, PDF, TXT) and deliver our customers' files in the original format after translation. Please contact our Support team for more details. How many languages does Translate.com support? We offer instant machine translation in over 90 languages and an accurate human translation in 39 language pairs. How can I communicate with the translator? You can leave a note for the translator before the translation process starts. You can also include some comments in the order form or contact our Support team, and they will forward your comments to your translator. Is there a localization solution for websites? For years we've been building industry-leading translation technology to ensure your website is translated quickly. Website localization is focused on the highest linguistic and technical accuracy and is being kept up-to-date with your source webpage changes and updates. Trusted by global companies worldwide, Translate.com provides quality end-to-end website translation solutions that your business can depend on for years to come. What are the advantages of Machine Translation and Human Translation? Translate.com offers two translation options: machine or online translation and translation by a qualified human translator. What option to choose depends on what your requirements are. Machine translation is instant and translates any volume of content directly to the language you've selected. Unlike a professional translation, it doesn't focus on nuances such as context or tone of voice. Machine translation doesn't offer the highest quality, but it is a free online translator. Professional human translation offers higher quality, SEO-friendly translations. Our highly-trained professional translators and subject-matter experts understand the importance of linguistic accuracy and work with utmost precision to provide you with the highest quality business, medical, and technical document translation. What translation services do you provide for businesses? Translate.com offers business translation and localization services for your website, software, applications, technical or medical documents, and reports (Website Localizer Widget and Translation API). Also, we offer integrations with popular online platforms, including Zendesk, HubSpot, WordPress, Weebly, etc. What is a regular turnaround time for translation? The timeline depends on the order size. It will typically take us about 1-2 days to deliver a quality translation of a project containing 3-4 pages. If you want the translator to handle your project within hours, you can use our fast turnaround service. We do our best to meet your expectations, and if there is a reason that we may not meet the deadline, we will inform you in advance. Do you have an API? Yes, our Translate API allows you to create translation projects, monitor progress easily, and receive the translated results. The entire translation workflow is fully automated with intuitive API to ensure just in time delivery and professional content adaptation. Simply sign up for Translate.com to receive a unique API key for your application. Next, integrate the Translation API within your app. Afterward, create new orders and stay on the same wavelength as customers. What integration options are available? Improve a multilingual online store, blog, or customize your support effortlessly with such platforms as Zendesk, HubSpot, WordPress, and Weebly. With a straightforward plugin installation, you can easily access Translate.com's powerful platform to translate your website content or a support ticket in a hassle-free environment. If you can't find the necessary platform on our integrations list, you can either integrate with our API or request a custom integration. How can I track the status of my translation? Tracking the status of your orders is simple. Sign up on our website, log in to your account and check the Order List Page. For more information, please contact our Support team. How can I become a translator at Translate.com? If you are a qualified language translator, we'll be happy to have you on our professional translator team. Sign up and take the assessment test in your language pair(s). Once you have passed the assessment, you'll be able to become a regular translator and translate blog articles, social media posts, support tickets, and more in your account. You'll have a chance to manage your time and create the office of your dreams at home. What is the pricing? Our translation and localization services are based on the subscription plans that can be adjusted according to your needs and preferences (access to a Premium Translator, additional setup, personal Account Manager, etc.). If you are not sure which plan is best suited to your company's needs, our Sales team will help you choose the best plan possible or create a custom plan for you. Where do you go when you need a quick translation to another language? A friend? Or a foreign language dictionary? You can also keep a handy browser extension if you need to translate words often. However, things can get challenging if you prefer not to install one, or if your company simply doesn't allow it. These free online translators are perfect for fast word or sentence swapping to other languages. And some, in fact, offer extra features that make them even better. When you find the best translator for your needs, don't forget to bookmark it so that it's always close at hand. So let's go over some of the best online translators available to us. 1. Google Translate One of the most popular online translation services is offered by Google. And if you search Google for translators, its own handy translation website will pop right up above your search results. This means you do not have to open another website. But if you have a lengthy amount of text to translate, the Google Translate website is your spot. You have more space for your text and can choose your input method from handwriting or keyboard options. Other features you might like are saving, listening to, sharing, or copying the translated text. In addition, you can suggest an edit if you believe the translation is incorrect. Google Translate provides over 100 languages. 2. Bing Translator Another big name in free online translation websites is Bing, which uses Microsoft Translator. You can select your input language or have the site automatically detect it as you type. If you have your microphone enabled, you can speak the text you want to be translated, which seems quite convenient if you ask us. After you receive the translation, you have options to hear it aloud in a male or female voice, share it, or search Bing with it. Moreover, you can also give the translation a thumbs-up or thumbs-down if you would like to provide a little feedback. The free translator offers over 60 languages, which makes it a perfect bargain in our opinion. 3. Translatedict On Translatedict, you can choose from over 50 languages and use auto-detect for your own dialect. Just enter your word, phrase, or even a large amount of text, pick the translation language, and hit the Translate button. You'll see the written translation and can click the sound button to hear it out loud. If you're using the translation in written communication, you'll see helpful word and character counts at the bottom. This is great for texts or social media posts where you have limited space. Translatedict also provides areas solely for the voice translator and text-to-speech feature. Plus, you can request help with professional translations and compare a quote by filling out the online form. 4. Translate.com A good translator that uses Microsoft's service, but offers over 30 languages, is Translate.com. You can use your voice or keyboard to enter the text, then read or listen to the translation. If you believe the translation should be reviewed, you can obtain a human translation with the first 100 words free of cost. Just click the contact icon and select sign in, or create an account if this is your first time using the tool. 5. DeepL Translator The DeepL Translator is a really cool tool that comes with its own definitions and automatic sentence completion options. You can choose from 26 languages and when you receive the translation, just double-click on a word for more details. Luckily, it's available for almost all operating systems, including Linux. When you select that word in the translation, you will see a dropdown box with more options. You can also take a look at the word definition that pops up at the bottom of the page at the same time. Plus, you will see examples of the word being used in both the input and output languages. This is a great feature to have if you are trying to learn the language you are translating into. 6. PROMT Online Translator PROMT Online Translator does not offer as many languages as other translators. The list is limited to about 22 languages so far. But it does have other nice features. For instance, it makes use of automatic language detection and even chooses a topic for the translation. You can then copy, paste, check the spelling, or access a dictionary. There is also a virtual keyboard so if you are using the site on a tablet, for example, popping in your words or sentences is simple. PROMT also offers translation software that you can purchase and download. Interestingly, free online website translator is also available as an app for Android and iOS users. 7. Collins Dictionary Translator If you use the Collins Dictionary website for looking up definitions or synonyms, then take a look at the translator. You can input text and translate it to and from over 60 languages. While this translator has minimal features, the translations come from Microsoft and there is a convenient copy button for the text you receive. If you are in the market for a basic translator on a site with a dictionary, thesaurus, and grammar tools, Collins Dictionary is the one for you. 8. InTranslator InTranslator is a great site for translations and comparisons at the same time. You can get a simple translation, back translation, and comparison between PROMT, Google, and Microsoft translators all at a same place. The site offers tons of languages as it links to other popular translation services like Google too. As for extras, there are a bunch of helpful tools like the Back Translation tool which automatically translates the target text back to the original—this helps you compare for accuracy. Take advantage of the automatic language detection, dictionary, spelling, and decoder feature with checkmarks. Or use the buttons to copy, paste, use text-to-speech, or share the translation via email. InTranslator also provides special accent characters that include currency, math, and company symbols. 9. SpanishDict If your main translation needs are English to Spanish, then SpanishDict is your ideal choice. Right on the main page, you can pop in the text you need translating. But what's nice about this Spanish translator is that it includes a special character set too. When you see the translation box, just click the arrow to expand it with accent buttons. If you have received text in Spanish and need to translate it to English, those characters come in handy. And, of course, you can translate the opposite way as well. Other good features are the definitions and examples you receive with your translation. For more, check out the best apps for learning Spanish. 10. Reverso Reverso is a website offering a host of free communication technologies. It makes use of Neural Machine Translation (NMT), an approach to machine translation through artificial neural networks. Its services range from translation, spelling and grammar checks to dictionaries, context checkers, and more. With support available for most of the popular languages like German, Spanish, English, Chinese, Japanese, and more, it currently serves around 60 million active users on the web. Apart from the online translation tools, you can also install its browser extension. Reverso is also available as an app for Android, iPhone, Mac, and Windows platforms. But, if you're part of an organization searching for something more solid, you should try the Reverso Corporate Translator, a paid and enhanced version of the free online translation service. Find the Best Online Translator for Your Needs Communication barrier is a real thing. And doubly so if you are dealing with a script that's totally unfamiliar to you. Any of these online translators can get the job done. Since each of the tools that we've listed here has a different feature to offer, don't hesitate to try more than one of them and see which you like the best.
